

Question: "What is the value in attending a Christian camp? Is the concept of Christian camping biblical?"

ones to be saved and to serve Him as Lord, whether as missionaries, pastors, or just as importantly, as "full-time Christians."

Answer: There are many factors that make Christian camping a positive and valuable experience. All of these experiences are found to some extent in the local church and in other types of ministries, but they are strongly present in Christian camps.

Thank you for allowing your child (ren) to camp with us the next few weeks.

First, in most Christian camps, there is an extensive exposure to the Word of God. Hebrews 4:12 tells us that the Bible is living and powerful. A typical day in a Christian camp will have some form of personal or group devotions and a Scripture memorization program. This repeated use of the Word of God over a three week session's time is very valuable in letting the Word dwell richly in the lives of the campers and staff (Colossians 3:16). God often orchestrates the various times in the Word to emphasize the same themes from different angles or to offer a variety of emphases that will meet different needs in the different individuals.

Another major blessing is that Christian camping allows the broadening of one's circle of fellowship. For many campers, new friends they meet at camp one year, and continue to see year by year, become lifelong friends that they care for, pray for, and encourage in Christ for decades. And it has happened more than once that a camper even ends up meeting his or her future godly spouse while attending or serving in a camp setting. God has greatly used Christian camping in calling out
