Encounter with the Child Archetype: Reclaiming the Orphan Within

Presented by: Nancy C. Romig, DNSc, Jungian Analyst

"The child motif represents not only something that existed in the distant past but also something that exists now; that is to say, it is not just a vestige but a system functioning in the present whose purpose is to compensate or correct, in a meaningful manner, the inevitable one-sidednesses and extravagances of the conscious mind."

- C.G. Jung; Archetypes of the Collective Unconscious, CW # 9.1, para 276

Abandonment of the child is an archetypal experience which can serve as an initiation into the individuation process. Appearance of a child in a dream can initiate contact with the gold in the shadow lost often through early trauma. The inner journey leading to the orphan within can be a perilous and a dangerous road but if weathered can lead to renewal and psychological transformation. What does the appearance of a child in a dream represent or more recently the abandoned child in the collective consciousness? In this workshop will seek to answer these questions and explore the archetype of the child and the significance of this motif by drawing upon Jung's writings, case material and present events.

This Basic Jung Seminar workshop will focus on the following learning objectives:

1. Identify two events which lead to the experience of abandonment.
2. Describe what the symbolic meaning of the child archetype in dreams can represent in an individual according to Jung.
3. Discuss the relationship between the orphan archetype and initiation into the individuation process.
