SERVE WEEK

By: Yoab Yosef

From February 26 to March 2, the high school students all went on trips to different places to learn about and serve the community. The 9th and 10th graders went to Los Angeles to serve; the 12th and 11th graders went to San Francisco, and the ELD students went to Boston.

Sarcher and Razor began preparing to seek out and kill Panoptes, the great wind dragon.

"So how exactly does this air head fight?" Razor asked.

"He uses his wings to create huge gusts of wind, and he also can shoot huge blasts of wind from his mouth," Sarcher answered.

The two set off to find Panoptes. They climbed mountains and trekked through forests, but they couldn't find the dragon. Days began to pass, then weeks, then an entire year had passed. During this year,

The Little Mermaid JR.

By Daniel Pokrifika

Judson put on the musical The Little Mermaid Jr. It was performed on March 23rd and 24th at Porticos Art Space. Although the cast had only two and a half months to prepare, with sickness and a couple sprained ankles along the way, the show turned out great.

Along with the Judson students, some homeschoolers joined in, including Jill Datema who said, "It was so fun to act as Ariel in the Little Mermaid. I am so thankful to my other cast members for the great experience."

On the 9th and 10th grade trip, the students got to serve and be around homeless people to understand what they go through and what they could do to help. They served mostly with children at a Rescue Mission to brighten their days up a little. They also helped out with the general community.

The ELD student trip to Boston was very informative. The students went to museums and colleges and got to explore the city. Not only this, but they were also able to participate in a Boston Tea Party spoof, where they were able to throw boxes of tea overboard.

The 11th and 12 graders took to San Francisco where they helped out in kitchens that assisted the homeless and other places to serve the San Francisco community. Overall it was a very good way of giving back and helping the community.

"I really enjoyed eating the food!" -Daniel, 9th Grade

"It was educational, noisy, and all in all I think we should have taped Ray's mouth shut so we could sleep!" -Zach, 10th grade

Sarcher taught Razor how to use an ancient power called The Light. This new power gave Razor the ability to defeat even the strongest of opponents. Along with the light, Razor gained minute control of his dragon power and was now able to breathe water and lightning, like he was able to do in his dragon form. He was also able to master his shadow dancer abilities. Countless months passed after Razor gained his new abilities. Razor had no worries though; he knew that time in the Nessus forest worked differently. When Razor returned it would be as if he never left.

Razor and Sarcher were finally able to track down Panoptes.

"You've trained for a long time, I've taught you all I know, now go and slay this beast!" yelled Sarcher.

Razor began to fight the dragon, dodging wind blast after wind blast. He had his Yato blade sheathed, though, for he was going to rely on his new abilities to kill this monster. Suddenly he summoned a Hammer in his hands that caught on fire.

"Behold Panoptes, for this is the mighty hammer of Sol. Its

There was an opening show in Friday night, a matinee show on Saturday, and the finale on Saturday night. Leah Soderling said, "It was very exciting and fun to be a part in the Little Mermaid."

Every single night the building was packed out. Extra seating was needed because so many people attended. Overall the show was a success and entertained hundreds of people. Brayan Maye, who acted as Grimsby, said, "It was so awesome!"

fire can never be extinguished, and it will be your end!" yelled Razor. Razor then began to use his shadow dancer abilities to quickly travel around the monster using the shadows. He was able to easily move around and hit Panoptes multiple times, throwing his hammer and summoning it back in his hand. For he had become a legendary warrior class, known to the world as a shadow sunbreaker. He was the last of these warriors. And his power was legend. After defeating Panoptes, Razor said his goodbyes to Sarcher.

"I've taught you all that you can possibly learn. I know you will be able to stop Thanatos," said Sarcher. "Thank you, friend, I've enjoyed these times you and I have spent together," replied Razor.

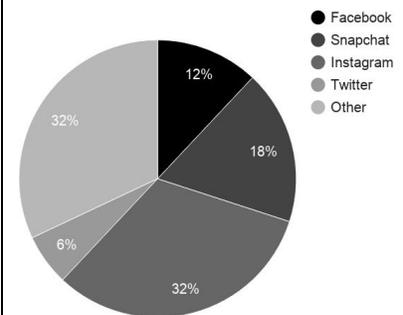

As he left the forest with his new Dragon stone that he had collected from Panoptes, he saw that the sky was blood red. And he saw one person standing there waiting for him. It was Roxas, but he looked different. He had a beard, and he was missing an arm!

"Roxas?! What happened to you, what happened to the world?" Razor asked frantically.

"Wait," Razor said. "How long have I been gone?"

"You've been gone for 10 years, Razor. While you were gone, Thanatos has completely taken over the worlds and has brought nothing but destruction with him," Roxas explained

Horrified, Razor knelt to the ground and began to shout; he didn't know what to do.

"But wait, where are Jamie and Isaac?" Razor asked

"Razor, they died almost a year ago. We tried to fight off Thanatos, but we were all defeated, they were killed, and I lost my arm. I had to get it replaced with a cybernetic arm," Roxas explained.

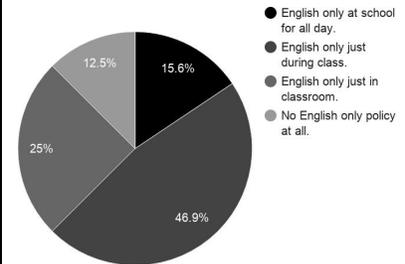

Razor began to sob with anger and sadness.

"Thanatos!!!! I promise, even if it kills me I will stop you and I will rip you to shreds," Razor yelled.

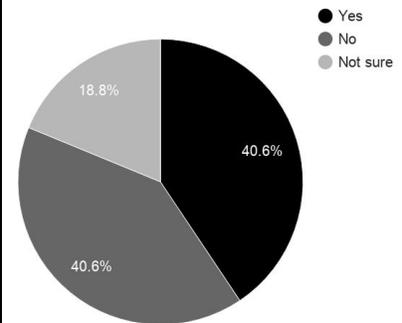

Will Razor and Roxas be able to defeat Thanatos? Will Razor be able to avenge his deceased friends? Find out next time in "The Battles of Battles."
